P.S.95Q
5-402

Farihah Chowdhury
November 13, 2015

There are multiple amounts of kids that don't have families or are starving and can't afford food. That's why I am thankful for my family and food.

I am thankful for my family. My family have supported me in many ways. For example, I my family send me to a tutor three days a week so my performance in school can excell higher than a teacher's expectation. My family have also kept me in a healthy routine so I can be ready for school. For example my mom give me vegetables to eat at least once a day. Another example is my parents make me do excercise.

Furthermore, I am also thankful to have food on my plate because their are thousands of kids who can't have a full plate of food. Food also gives me energy for the day. Eating food doesn't make my stomach disappointed.

In conclusion, I believe being thankful or to appreciate what you have is important. This is because there are many kids out there without things that you have.