What Are You Thankful For

11/23/11

I am thankful for my home, my bed, and my food, because some people in NY and around the world won't have a Thanksgiving or a bed to sleep in at night and can't buy anything on Black Friday. They probably won't get anything for Christmas either. I am also thankful for all of my family and friends because some people don't have any friends and some people don't know their family. Some people haven't seen them in a long time because they have done something wrong or have been sent to jail. Those types of families are hard because the family member may lose contact with the other family members while in jail. It would be good if there were no families like that. Families are families and should always love each other.
