Marlo DeAngelo 11/11/15
Writing Weekley Writing

Holiday season is around the corner. Soon everybody will be busy shopping, preparing food and wrapping gifts. The most important thing we should do this time of year is to stop and think about all the things we are thankful for.

There are many things I am thankful for. The most important thing I am thankful for is my family. I have always been taught that family comes first. My family is always there for me. They always give me confidence when I need it, and are always there to suport me. I am very lucky to have a large family of grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins. We always find time to get together and celebrate birthdays. We have created many memories along the way.

During this time of year I hope everybody will take the time to stop and think about what they are thankful for.