This year, I am thankful for many things, and I will tell you about two of them. I am mainly thankful for my skill at gaming. It helps me enjoy the games, as well as learn through them. I'm also thankful for myself learning the metric system. It's an easier and faster measurement system.

First, I'm grateful because I'm good at gaming. First off, I can live another life through gaming without being\becoming a hypocrite. Second, I play with my friends and family through gaming. Finally, some games require strategy, and help me become smarter.

Next, I'm grateful that I'm learning the metric system. First, it's easier than the American Standard. Also, it's used in way more countries. Finally, it's easier to learn.

Now I see that there are many, many things I am grateful for. Some I am grateful for more than others, but I am most thankful for my skill at gaming and that I am learning the metric system.
