

Chris Hart

English

11/15/11

Thankful

1. A good topic and concluding sentence.
2. Start sentence with the same word no more than twice.
3. Use the correct verb tense.

I am thankful for so many different things at this time of year, but sadly I can only pick 2. One thing that I really appreciate that I have is my family. They support me when I am doing something. For example, they come to my basketball games usually every time they can make it. That shows they support me because they want to come watch me what I participate in. Sometimes they buy things on special occasions like my birthday or Christmas. For example, if I ask for a cool hat that I want, they won't just buy it right away, I will have to wait till my birthday or Christmas. Something that they do daily is provide me food and water. An example of this is: they feed me breakfast, lunch, and dinner when it's time for it. Also, they have milk in the fridge, and a water dispenser that I can get water out of. Another thing that they do for me is they are happy with my grades. If I get a bad grade, they won't just yell at me, we'll talk about it calmly and try to work out something so I don't get that kind of grade again. Another thing that I am thankful for is my house. I live in a structured home so I'm protected from weather occasions and things like that. Why would I be thankful for my house? If you think about it, a house is really something you really need to live, because if you didn't, you wouldn't have food or water. You also wouldn't have a place to sleep. People don't really realize in life that houses are expensive and not everybody can afford them. Not everybody appreciates what they have or gives thanks about what they have. But at this time of year, I do pledge that.