Otsego County Mental Health Concerns Under The Microscope

JAMES L. SEWARD April 17, 2014

| ISSUE: HEALTH, LOCAL GOVERNMENT, MENTAL HEALTH, POLICE, FIREFIGHTERS

ONEONTA, 04/17/14 -- State Senator James L. Seward (R/C/I – Oneonta) today commented on a meeting he convened of local stakeholders to discuss the future of emergency psychiatric services in Otsego County and the surrounding region:

“The decision by Bassett Medical center to terminate inpatient psychiatric services has wide-ranging consequences. Today’s meeting of local stakeholders included a brief summary of what led to the decision, and more importantly, allowed for an open dialogue on actions to be taken to fill the pending treatment void.

“Mental health needs are diverse, complex, highly specialized, and can often result in a crisis situation. Proper treatment can be the difference between life and death. We need to ensure that appropriate resources are available and that those in need are able to access suitable, timely care.

“Already, several modifications are well underway, including the activation of a Mobile Crisis Assessment Team, which will help meet emergency mental health needs. The MCAT and other health leaders will also be reeducating the public on how to access appropriate services and will be expanding their reach through several counties.

“Further, the transportation of patients in need of acute care must be fine-tuned. Transitioning away from police transfers for patients that are not dangerous to ambulance and other transportation means will be a high priority in order to maximize public safety, reduce pressure on public resources, and ensure appropriate means of care.

“As we revise the service model in Otsego County, and the surrounding region, it is imperative that we maximize our resources and evolve to deliver services through new channels. I am committed to securing any available state dollars to help implement this transformation and, I believe our health care professionals, college leaders, and municipal officials, working cooperatively, are up to the challenge ahead.”
