Wolfe's Pond Park

Hylan Blvd. & Cornelia Ave., Huguenot

718-984-8266

20 developed acres and 170 acres of wooded park land. People come for sunbathing, picnicking, comfort, fresh water fishing all year-round (must have a license - daylight hours only) and salt water fishing from October through May.

Lemon Creek Park

Hylan Blvd. from Sharrott Ave. to Seguine Ave.

A 105-acre park, Lemon Creek Preserve contains the largest and most pristine salt marsh on Staten Island's south shore. The parkland is home to swans, mallard ducks and black ducks, and it serves as a resting point for numerous migratory birds and, in early October, monarch butterflies. Lemon Creek Fishing Pier is also located at the park. These gregarious birds nest in apartment house-style structures maintained by volunteers. Lemon Creek Park's waterfront area provides a spawning ground for many species of fish and shellfish.

Bloomingdale Park

Richmond Pkwy., West Shore Expw., Lenevar Ave., Ramona Ave.

Most of the 138-acre park was left natural and passive for wildlife. Walking trails have been included for hiking enthusiasts, as well as scenic waterways. A portion of the park has been reshaped to offer a baseball field, softball field, soccer field, basketball courts and a playground.

Mt Loretto Preserve

6450 Hylan Boulevard

Mt Loretto is a spectacular waterfront property featuring important wildlife habitats and stunning vistas from the highest natural bluffs in New York City. The bay is home to dozens of species of finfish and shellfish, including striped bass, winter flounder, bluefish, and hard clam. It also is a major migratory pathway and overwintering area for numerous waterfowl, many of which can be observed in large numbers at Mt. Loretto. The wetland habitat serves as a nursery area for fish and crabs, and provides foraging opportunities for fish and wading birds, such as herons, egrets and ibis. Today, nature enthusiasts can take in the natural wonders of Mt. Loretto and observe wildlife in its natural state.

Clay Pit Ponds State Park

*83 Nielsen Avenue
718-967-1976*

The 260-plus-acre park holds a mixture of swamps, bogs, ponds, sand barrens, mature woodlands and spring fed streams.

The abundant water supply supports a plethora of wildlife including many species of birds, reptiles, amphibians, and mammals. Facilities include hiking paths, horse trails and an administration building. Free environmental education programs are offered on Saturdays. The park is open year-round.
