The New York State Delegation has concluded its Second Trip to the Dominican Republic with resounding success, enhancing the bonds of cooperation and friendship between the two nations. The visit, led by New York State Senator Luis Sepúlveda and Dominican Republic Senator Alexis Victoria Yeb, marked a milestone in bolstering bilateral relations and continuing the fruitful collaboration between the legislative bodies of both territories.

During the mission, the delegation had the honor of an official meeting with the President of the Dominican Republic, Luis Abinader. This pivotal dialogue addressed matters of mutual interest and solidified collaboration in strategic areas. Additionally, the delegation engaged in productive meetings with officials from the Dominican government and leaders of the Dominican Congress, headed by Senate President Ricardo de los Santos.

The fundamental purpose of the journey was to deepen cooperation between the two nations and strengthen institutional ties. The discussions encompassed areas of mutual interest such as education, the economy, and legislation. The presence of a diverse delegation, including elected officials, government representatives, community leaders, and experts across various fields, enriched the exchange of knowledge and perspectives.

Senator Luis Sepúlveda expressed his gratitude to all participants for their dedication and commitment to the mission. "This journey represents a significant step in the relationship between our legislative body and the Dominican Republic. Strengthened cooperation will facilitate sustained growth in our bilateral relations," stated Senator Sepúlveda.

This Second Delegation to the Dominican Republic solidifies its role as a pivotal catalyst in deepening bilateral ties. The achievements and commitments established during this mission will lay the foundation for fruitful collaboration in areas of mutual interest, benefiting citizens of both nations and fortifying the institutional relationship between the senates of New York and the Dominican Republic.
