On Sunday, June 8th, Senator Serrano proudly participated once again in the vibrant National Puerto Rican Day Parade, held along the bustling streets of 5th Avenue in

New York City. This annual event, which attracts thousands of attendees, serves as a remarkable celebration of Puerto Rican culture, heritage, and unity. It highlights the rich traditions, music, and vibrant artistry that define Puerto Rican identity while also honoring the numerous significant contributions that Puerto Ricans have made to our city, state, and nation in fields such as art, science, politics, and community service. The parade not only fosters a sense of pride among Puerto Ricans but also strengthens the bonds within our diverse communities.
