Michael Buben; and

WHEREAS, In addition, St. Michael's Antiochian Orthodox Christian Church owned a large house located at 98 Genesee Street, on the corner of Genesee and Lafayette Streets, which was used as a rectory, classroom, and meeting space; for a year, the congregation used this house for celebration of the Divine Mysteries, until the beginning of construction of a new Temple on that parcel; and

WHEREAS, Through the kindness and generosity of the Vestry of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, St. Michael's Antiochian Orthodox Christian Church was able to conduct its services in their parish hall during construction; this arrangement continued for two years until the new church was completed; and

WHEREAS, On November 26, 1961, Metropolitan Antony Bashir, on behalf of the Patriarch of Antioch, consecrated and blessed St. Michael's Antiochian Orthodox Christian Church's new Temple, to the glory of Almighty God, the Holy Trinity, and reaffirmed the heavenly patronage of the parish by the great Archangel Michael; and
