

NEW YORK STATE SENATOR

Andrew J. Lanza

Red Cross Efforts on Staten Island

ANDREW J LANZA November 15, 2012

I received the following update from The Red Cross today:

The Red Cross has provided the following services in Staten Island:

Tuesday, November 13:

24,841 meals and snacks served to residents

384 people contacted through in-person outreach to assess their needs including counseling and referrals to organizations and agencies including FEMA

To Date:

244,935 meals and snacks served to residents.

80,860 bulk cleaning supplies, toiletries and additional materials distributed

9,860 clean-up and comfort kits distributed

3,075 people contacted through in-person outreach to assess their needs including counseling and referrals to organizations and agencies including FEMA

Across the New York City region:

1,187,456	meals and snacks served to residents.
607,175	bulk cleaning supplies, toiletries and additional materials distributed
26,600	clean-up and comfort kits distributed
30,372	people contacted through in-person outreach to assess their needs including counseling and referrals to organizations and agencies including FEMA

Red Cross relief workers continue to deliver hot meals and supplies into affected communities. Locations of sites can be accessed at <http://newsroom.redcross.org>

For additional information on our response, visit www.nyredcross.org.