Info Requested From Nonprofits Raising Funds For Hurricane Sandy Relief And Reported Online To Promote Transparency & Ensure That Funds Raised For Sandy Relief Are Used For That Purpose

The Attorney General today announced that his office has sent letters to 75 nonprofits requesting information on their fundraising and relief activities related to Hurricane Sandy. In an effort to promote transparency and donor confidence, and to ensure that funds raised for Sandy relief are properly used, the Attorney General's Charities Bureau will compile this information and report it online.

The letter sent to charities asks for certain basic information, including:

- The amount raised and spent to date for Hurricane Sandy relief;

- Whether donations will be used solely for Hurricane Sandy relief;
- The services provided to date to those affected by Hurricane Sandy;
- Whether the charity is providing funding to other organizations, or making direct financial grants to individuals, families or businesses;
- What the charity plans to do with any surplus funds.

Information obtained from the responses will be made available on the Attorney General's website. In addition to promoting transparency, this information will also assist relief organizations in coordinating their delivery of services.
