Minority and woman-owned businesses interested in learning how to become certified to do business with New York State are invited to attend a public forum in Lake Placid on Friday March 1. The meeting is being co-hosted by Senator Betty Little, Empire State Development and the Adirondack Economic Development Corporation.

The event will be held 1 to 3 pm at the Olympic Center, 2634 Main Street in Lake Placid.

“This is a unique opportunity for those interested in becoming certified to learn about the process and New York’s state contracting system,” said Little. “I’m looking forward to an informative discussion, lots of questions and helpful assistance provided that I know will be of great value to those interested.”

The presentation will focus on how to become certified with the state of New York and how to navigate the procurement process, including the new New York State Contracting System.
