| ISSUE: BUDGET

Senator Charles J. Fuschillo, Jr. (R-Merrick) announced that the New York State Senate recently passed its 2013-14 budget resolution, a plan which controls spending, rejects new taxes, prioritizes job creation, and invests in education, health care, and our infrastructure. The resolution outlines the Senate's proposal for the state budget.

"This is a plan which continues our focus on the right priorities: cutting taxes, creating jobs, and growing our economy. It also makes additional investments in education, health care, and transportation. We have made great progress over the last two years in getting New York State headed in the right direction, and this plan would build on that success and ensure New York continues to move forward," said Senator Fuschillo.
