| ISSUE: EDUCATION

"This is great news for families in the City of Buffalo," said Senator Grisanti. "Studies have overwhelmingly showed that the first few years of a child's life are critical for their cognitive development and learning. If we can expose children to education early on then as students they will have a better chance for success in their later years of education."

Additionally, other studies have shown a cost savings measure. According to the Center For Public Education, High-quality pre-k programs also provide substantial cost savings to federal, state, and local governments. Numerous studies have shown a reduced use of special education services and lower grade retention among pre-k participants.
