

NEW YORK STATE SENATOR

Martin J. Golden

Nyc Emergency Management Issues Weather Alert for Today Through Sunday, February 22

MARTIN J. GOLDEN February 20, 2015

New York City Emergency Management has issued a weather alert for dangerous cold temperatures for tonight, followed by a wintry mix of snow, sleet, freezing rain, and rain Saturday, 2/21 through Sunday 2/22. Low temperatures tonight are forecast around 10 degrees and wind chills near 5 degrees. Saturday wind chills between 0 and 10 degrees can be expected. Light snow will begin late Saturday morning and continue throughout the day, becoming heavier between 4:00 PM and 7:00 PM. Snow will transition to sleet and freezing rain Saturday evening into Sunday morning. New Yorkers are asked to exercise caution during the period of extreme cold weather, and be prepared for slippery conditions, as freezing rain could cause icy conditions Sunday.

See the following press release for details <http://on.nyc.gov/1zTB1LE> or view NYC Emergency Management's winter weather video: <http://bit.ly/1CV6zGS>.