(Albany, NY)- Senator John J. Bonacic, (R/C/I-Mt. Hope) is pleased to announce the inclusion of $800,000 in funding for the Research and Recognition Project in the 2015-2016 New York State Budget. The Research and Recognition Project is a non-profit organization that has developed a breakthrough, non-invasive, neurological treatment for veterans suffering from Post-Traumatic Stress (PTS). Senator Bonacic was joined by a bi-partisan group of thirty State Senators, who were all in support of funding this monumental research to cure PTS.

“Treating our veterans after they return home from service is one of the most solemn duties we undertake as legislators,” said Senator Bonacic.

Senator Bonacic held a press conference in support of funding the Research and Recognition Project last month. During that press conference, Jerrold Oser, Past Commander of the Orange County American Legion, who suffered with Post-Traumatic Stress and was treated by the Research and Recognition Project stated, “Thanks to the Research and Recognition Project, I can live a decent life and still go out and help other veterans.”

At the same press conference, Brigadier General John Adams, a retired US Air Force General, noted, “Post-Traumatic Stress rattles lives, and the Research and Recognition Project addresses the root cause, and fixes the problems associated with Post-Traumatic Stress.”

By investing in our veterans and others, to cure Post-Traumatic Stress, the long term fiscal effect will be saving billions of taxpayer dollars by helping them get off of disability, and return to the fulfilling, productive lives they deserve to lead.
