SEN. FARLEY ANNOUNCES SENATE PASSES BILL TO CONTINUE HELPING GROUND ZERO WORKERS SUFFERING FROM SEPTEMBER 11th RELATED HEALTH ISSUES

HUGH T. FARLEY May 15, 2015

| ISSUE: HEALTH

State Senator Hugh T. Farley (R, C, I – Schenectady) reported that he and his colleagues in the New York State Senate recently passed a bill to continue the September 11th Worker Protection Task Force Act for another five years and help those who have been afflicted with a disability as a result of working at the World Trade Center and other sites. The bill (S4711) would enable the Task Force to continue its work past the current authorization date of June 10, 2015.

Many public employees, including police, fire, correction, sanitation and civilians provided rescue, recovery and cleanup at the former World Trade Center site and other designated locations. Early statistics indicate that these workers were exposed to numerous hazards which may have, and may continue to impact their health in the years to come.

If any public employee was exposed to these hazards and can no longer perform their jobs, even after retirement, this legislation would allow for an additional five years for the employee to apply for an accidental disability retirement. The application would be subject to the respective Retirement System review process by proving, by competent evidence, that the illness or injury was caused in connection with exposure to any elements at the World Trade Center site.

In continuing the Task Force for another five years, this bill would also continue the Task Force's successful work in identifying additional issues that have arisen from the rescue, recovery, and cleanup of the former World Trade Center site.

The bill has been sent to the Assembly.
