Senator Patrick M. Gallivan (R-C-I, Elma) is announcing grants for more than two dozen public libraries throughout the 59th State Senate District, which covers all of Wyoming County and portions of Erie, Livingston and Monroe counties. In all, 26 libraries will share a total of $39,000.

"Our public libraries provide important services in communities across the district," Gallivan said. "They connect residents to the larger world through books, videos, computers and the internet and allow people of all ages to conduct research or advance their education. In many communities, the library also serves as a gathering place for residents and organizations."

Gallivan secured the library funding during the recently completed legislative session. The following libraries will each receive $1,500 in funding:
