

NEW YORK STATE SENATOR

Betty Little

Water quality was focus of Senate Environmental Conservation Committee Hearing

BETTY LITTLE October 1, 2009

| ISSUE: ENVIRONMENT

Senator Betty Little and Senator Antoine Thompson, chair of the Senate Environmental Conservation Committee, listen to testimony at a water-quality hearing in Albany today. The public hearing drew testimony from experts on many issues including sewage treatment, drinking water quality, storm water infrastructure, detection of pharmaceuticals in drinking water supplies and aquatic invasive species.