

NEW YORK STATE SENATOR

Andrew J. Lanza

Senator Lanza joins Marti Wimmer, her daughter Christina Criscitiello and other Staten Island elected officials at a press conference announcing legislation named after Marti's daughter, Caroline Wimmer, who was murdered in March of 2009.

The bill would make it a felony for public servants to broadcast unauthorized crime scene images that were taken during the course of their official duties. In 2009, an EMT that responded to the scene of Caroline Wimmer's death, later posted a photograph he took of Wimmer on Facebook.
