Help Senator Squadron Get Rid of Ponding

DANIEL L. SQUADRON August 4, 2011

Ponding is a small body of still water formed by the hollowing or embanking of the streets that can cause unpleasant smells, adversely affect the quality of life of those who live and work nearby, and have negative public health and environmental consequences. Senator Squadron is currently working to alleviate the problem and needs your help.

Please fill out a survey about how ponding has impacted your quality of life, business, and/or day-to-day experience:
