LOCAL OFFICIALS CONDEMN POTENTIAL WEST VILLAGE BIAS ATTACK

BRAD HOYLMAN-SIGAL October 13, 2016

NEW YORK – A group of local elected officials, including State Senator Brad Hoylman, Assemblymember Deborah Glick, and NYC Council Members Corey Johnson and Margaret Chin released the following statement today in response to a potential bias attack that occurred in the West Village on Sunday, October 2. During the incident the assailant pushed a male victim into a window at 168-170 West 4th Street while reportedly yelling racial and homophobic slurs.

“The unwarranted and potentially biased attack on an innocent individual in the West Village strikes at the very heart of New York’s LGBT community. Our thoughts are with the victim as he recovers from this traumatic incident. Sadly, this is just the latest incident in a disturbing pattern of bias crimes carried out against LGBT people and religious or ethnic minorities across New York. To root out these attacks we must come together as a community and show that we will not be cowed by threats of violence, real or otherwise. To that end, we must ensure that the cowardly individual behind this attack faces the full force of the law.

“We’re grateful to the officers of the NYPD’s Sixth Precinct for their continuing efforts to bring the perpetrator to justice and strongly encourage anyone with information about the identity or whereabouts of this individual to step forward. We will continue to do all we can to assist both law enforcement and members of our community as this investigation continues.”

This afternoon the group of elected held a flyering event at the scene of the incident in an effort to raise awareness of the attack, demonstrate support for the victim, and help identify the perpetrator. A copy of the elected officials’ flyer with important information about the incident and the investigation can be found below.
