ELAINE PHILLIPS October 21, 2017

Senator Elaine Phillips recently visited The Buckley Country Day School in Roslyn to speak with students about leadership and how they can giving back to their local community.

“As a mother of three daughters who attended Buckley, and a former board member of the school, it was a great pleasure to meet with current students and faculty. Teaching leadership skills to our youth and imparting the importance of community service at a young age provides valuable lessons that prepare them for everyday life,” Senator Elaine Phillips said. “Thank you to Dr. Jean-Marc Juhel, the Buckley staff and the entire student body for inviting me to speak.”
