ALBANY, NY – State Senator Brad Hoylman (D/WF-Manhattan) released the following statement applauding Governor Cuomo’s call today for a progressive agenda during the 2018 State of the State and putting forth his priorities for the upcoming session. Senator Hoylman is the prime sponsor of a suite of bills that would accomplish the Governor's priorities, including reformation of secretive sexual harassment settlements, measures to keep firearms from domestic abusers, protection of transgender individuals, efforts to fight climate change, and passage of the Child Victims Act.

“In the era of Trump, New York is confronted with unprecedented challenges that threaten our health and wellbeing. As Governor Cuomo pointed out, New Yorkers deserve and demand a strong, progressive agenda that will alleviate these problems and improve their lives. Whether it’s the #MeToo movement, gun violence, climate change, protection for transgender individuals, or public corruption the Governor has laid down the gauntlet and I and my colleagues under Democratic Leader Andrea Stewart-Cousins are ready to work with him to act.”

Senator Hoylman is the prime sponsor of the following bills that would accomplish many of the progressive goals laid out by the Governor in today's State of the State:

#MeToo

S.0124 would outlaw the practice of kickbacks and self-dealing by making it a felony for public officials to knowingly and secretly steer public funds or business to institutions or organizations in order to benefit themselves, their family members, or a person with whom the public official has a financial relationship.
