SENATOR VELMANETTE MONTGOMERY September 19, 2017

| ISSUE: RE-ENTRY, CRIMINAL JUSTICE REFORM, END MASS INCARCERATION

Senator Montgomery delivered the Keynote Address at the Interchurch Center's 2nd Annual Re-Thinking Re-Entry II Conference and focused her remarks on the importance of engaging the formerly incarcerated in the development of criminal justice and re-entry policy.

The Senator also discussed her GED bill that was signed into law. The statute requires the NYS Department of Correctional Services to provide prisoners with an opportunity to complete a General Equivalency Diploma (GED) prior to release on parole, conditional release, post release supervision or presumptive release.

"It is crucial that people have access to educational and vocational program opportunities while incarcerated. People coming home from prison must have a strong support system in order to succeed moving forward. Having successful re-entry programs, with proper funding, led by the formerly incarcerated is key to reducing the recidivism rate, which is currently the driving force of mass incarceration," said Senator Montgomery.

The conference was convened and hosted by The Interchurch Center (TIC) in cooperation with Positive Community Magazine. The formerly incarcerated gathered with expert panelists representing the city and state levels, services providers, and leaders of faith based organizations at an all-day conference to discuss the pressing need for services for formerly incarcerated men and women.

The Co- Convening Partners of this conference consists of Bard Prison Initiative, The Redemption Center, Inc., Center for NuLeadership on Urban Solutions, Greenhope Services for Women, Inc., The Osborne Association, College and Community Fellowship, Providence House, Inc., Hour Children, Inc., The Riverside Church in the City of New York, Women's Prison Association, New York Theological Seminary, and The Fortune Society.
