Honoring Parental Engagement with Our Schools

I want to celebrate the many ways our public schools engage families. Glad to join with Superintendent for District 17 Clarence Ellis in talking with parents. It is critical to include all stakeholders in our education system in discussions. Inclusion across the board is so important - we have insights to gain from community expertise and our educators and education leaders have important insights to share with us as parents and community residents. Thanks to all who were able to join in this productive discussion today!
