Sen. Gianaris Introduces Legislation to Ban For-Profit Pet Sales at Retail Stores

MICHAEL GIANARIS February 15, 2018

| ISSUE: ANIMAL RIGHTS, PETS, RETAIL STORES, PET SHOPS, S7711

ALBANY, N.Y. – Senator Michael Gianaris announced legislation which would ban retail pet stores from selling animals for profit, taking aim at the abusive environment fostered by puppy mills.

“With thousands of good animals in need of homes, there is no need for notorious puppy mills to supply pet stores,” said Senator Michael Gianaris. “Our four-legged companions should be treated with respect, not like commodities.”

Under the proposal, retail pet stores would be permitted to work with rescue agencies to promote cat and dog adoptions but would not be permitted to make a profit in the process.

California recently enacted a similar proposal, which is also working to end the practice of high-volume commercial breeding, which has led to the mistreatment of animals and increased shelter populations.
