| ISSUE: WOMEN OF DISTINCTION, MENTORING

On Tuesday, May 7th, the State Senate recognized Nicole Sheindlin as a Woman of Distinction during the Senate's 21st Annual Women of Distinction ceremony hosted in Albany. Ms. Sheindlin is a resident of Larchmont and was nominated by State Senator Shelley B. Mayer (D-Westchester) for her work to empower young women through the "Her Honor Mentoring" program.

Ms. Sheindlin co-founded the “Her Honor Mentoring” program with her stepmother, the Honorable Judith Sheindlin, star of the television program, “Judge Judy”, and former Supervising Judge of Manhattan’s Family Court. The Westchester County-based nonprofit pairs female high school seniors, generally the first in their families to attend college and many of whom face significant financial barriers, with women who are leaders in their respective careers. The program provides a supportive mentoring opportunity for these young women to gain exposure to women in leadership, to gain confidence and improve work skills, and to expand the range of opportunities they consider for their futures. For hundreds of young women from Westchester’s diverse communities, from Peekskill to Port Chester, the “Her Honor Mentoring” program has changed lives and lifted hopes. Senator Mayer has proudly participated in the Her Honor Mentoring program for several years with highly capable young women from the Yonkers Public Schools placed in her office. Senator Mayer’s mentee for this year, Anahi Bustamante, a Senior at Harrison High School, came to Albany to watch the ceremony.

?State Senator Shelley Mayer said, “I am so very pleased to nominate Nicole Sheindlin for the NYS Senate Woman of Distinction Award. Throughout her career, Nicole has shown a dedication to the community and to empowering women. Her founding and leadership of this innovative and life-changing program is a testament to her belief that exposure to women in leadership in a variety of careers, coupled with supportive mentorship, will have a lasting and meaningful impact on young women’s lives. I have had the honor of participating in the Her Honor Mentoring program for many years. It is a pathbreaking program for the young women who participate and graduate from the program, exposed to careers and choices that will shape their futures.”

Nicole Sheindlin said, "I am honored to be recognized with the NYS Women of Distinction Award, and I accept this distinction on behalf of all of the amazing women of Westchester County who enthusiastically serve as mentors to our next generation of women leaders."
