JEN METZGER July 8, 2019

| ISSUE: IMPROVING GOVERNMENT TRANSPARENCY, PUBLIC HEARINGS, 2019 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

(Middletown, NY) Senator Jen Metzger highlighted the numerous public hearings held across the state during her first legislative session in the State Senate, including four in the Hudson Valley. During the 2019 legislative session, the Senate Majority held 36 issue-based hearings, in contrast to only seven in the previous years. Metzger, who ran on improving government transparency, says that public hearings are an important opportunity for constituents to discuss issues directly with their elected officials.

“Our democracy is strongest when there are opportunities for citizens to weigh in on important pieces of legislation,” Senator Metzger explained. “We have just wrapped up one of the most productive legislative sessions in state history, and I am proud that we included hearings on important topics, from climate change to election reform. I will continue to support legislation that improves transparency in government and to provide every opportunity for my constituents to have a voice in Albany.”

This year, the Senate Majority held hearings on transportation, infrastructure, affordable housing, climate change, health care coverage, farm workers' rights, limousine safety, sports betting, education funding, and the first joint Legislative hearing on sexual harassment in nearly 30 years. Totalling over five times more public hearings than the previous majority. Senator Metzger initiated or co-initiated hearings in her district on a range of issues, including the Climate and Community Protection Act, the State budget, and the Farmworkers Fair Labor Practices Act. The 42nd State Senate District includes Sullivan County and portions of Orange, Ulster, and Delaware counties.
