State Senator Patty Ritchie recently visited Altmar-Parish-Williamstown Elementary school to check out its new onsite dental clinic, made possible through $250,000 in funding she secured to expand dental care in Oswego County in partnership with ConnexCare. ConnexCare Oswego is a patient-centered health care practice providing Oswego County residents with a variety of health care related services.

The A.P.W. Elementary School clinic begin serving students on September 19th of this year. ConnexCare's dental hygienist has seen more than 60 students since then. Of the schools' enrollment of 580 students, 167 have already enrolled in the dental care program, with many more expected in the coming months.

“When considering the health of our children, we cannot overlook the importance of quality dental care,” said Senator Patty Ritchie. “This new clinic is ensuring our students will not face issues such as infections, tooth loss speech difficulties, all associated with a lack of dental care. Connecting people in rural communities with dental care can be a challenge, and I am pleased to work with ConnexCare to make it easier for individuals—especially children—to improve their dental health and in turn, lead healthier lives.”

“We are grateful to Senator Richie for her efforts in securing dollars in the State budget to address a significant need in the A.P.W. community,” said ConnexCare Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer Tricia Peter-Clark. “We appreciate the support we have received from the district and participating families to this point, who have made the implementation of services very smooth. We look forward to continued program growth and improved oral health outcomes in the future.”

Thanks in part to the $250,000 delivered by Senator Ritchie, ConnexCare has also been able to offer oral health care services at the Sandy Creek Central School District, as well as the Fairgrieve Elementary School in Fulton.
