Senate Passes Gianaris' Automatic Voter Registration Bill, Strengthening And Expanding New Yorkers' Voting Rights

MICHAEL GIANARIS January 9, 2020

| ISSUE: AUTOMATIC VOTER REGISTRATION, #AVRNOW, DEMOCRACY REFORM, VOTING RIGHTS

ALBANY, N.Y. – Senate Deputy Leader Michael Gianaris announced today the Senate Democratic Majority today advanced his Automatic Voter Registration legislation empowering more New Yorkers to take advantage of early voting opportunities and exercise their Constitutional right to vote. This builds on the historic voting reforms passed under the Senate Democratic Majority during the 2019 Legislative Session. This new package of voting reforms also includes and improvements to early voting to ensure adequate polling locations in communities throughout the state.

“At a time in our country when voting rights are under assault, New York must live up to its potential as a progressive leader. Access to the ballot box should be easy and fair, and enacting automatic voter registration would go a long way towards improving our democracy. I am proud the Senate is passing AVR today,” said Senate Deputy Leader Michael Gianaris.

Senator Gianaris’ bill, S.6457B, creates a system of automatic voter registration within designated agency applications at the Departments of Health and Motor Vehicles.
