Staying informed is always important, especially during a major public health crisis.

That's why the State Department of Health has just created a new website which will provide the most up-to-date coronavirus testing data to the public. The website will be updated daily with the latest data and will also present visualizations of statewide and county-level testing and results. The public can also access the testing data through Open New York at data.ny.gov, which offers machine readable datasets in downloadable standard formats that can be sorted, searched, analyzed and applied to new uses.
