SENATE EDUCATION COMMITTEE ADVANCES BILL TO AUTHORIZE SPECIAL ACT SCHOOLS AND PRIVATE SPECIAL EDUCATION SCHOOLS TO ESTABLISH RESERVE FUNDS

On Tuesday, March 2nd, the Senate Education Committee voted to unanimously advance Senator Shelley Mayer's bill, S.572, to allow the governing boards of special act schools and private special education schools to establish reserve funds. S.572 limits the amount of funds that may be retained annually to one percent the allowable program cost, in keeping with fiscal management options for independent school districts.

Special act schools were created by the state to serve the state's most high-need students placed in these schools through juvenile justice programs or child welfare agencies, or for reasons concerning the student's mental health or developmental disabilities. These schools serve the state's most challenging students, yet they are funded by a stringent rate setting methodology which does not currently allow for reserve funds to meet unexpected circumstances. State approved private special education schools also serve students with specific needs that cannot be appropriately addressed in public school settings.

Senator Shelley B. Mayer, Chair of the Senate Education Committee, said "This bill extends the fiscal management tools available to independent school districts to schools which serve some of our most vulnerable students. The fiscal strain of the pandemic on states, local governments, and school districts, highlights the need for additional flexibility for school leaders to act in the best interest of their students and to meet unexpected challenges. Thank you to my colleagues on the Senate Education Committee for advancing this bill to equip education leaders with additional tools to plan, respond, and provide for the state's most vulnerable students in changing fiscal circumstances."
