| ISSUE: STATE BUDGET

This state is at a crossroads and we must enact an across-the-board agenda to cut taxes, address affordability, and rebuild stronger and safer communities.

Albany, N.Y., March 11—State Senator Tom O'Mara (R,C,I-Big Flats), Ranking Member of the Senate Finance Committee, today joined Minority State Senate Leader Rob Ortt in a letter to Governor Kathy Hochul and Senate Majority Leader Andrea Stewart Cousins highlighting the Republican Conference's key priorities from its "Take Back New York" plan released earlier year and requested they be included in the upcoming 2022-2023 state budget.

As state budget negotiations accelerate, with the Senate and Assembly expected to vote on “one-house” budget recommendations next week, the Republican Conference has outlined key priorities that highlight the needs and concerns of everyday New Yorkers.

Ortt said, “It is clear New Yorkers are unhappy with the One-Party Rule in this state. From witnessing a corrupt former governor engulfed in scandals during a pandemic, enduring authoritarian mandates affecting people’s everyday lives, and now struggling to pay for fuel and essential groceries, the people of this state have had enough. It is our job to provide financial relief responsibly. Our Take Back New York Agenda has common sense proposals that will restore our economy and people’s faith in government.”

O’Mara said, “New York remains one of the highest-taxed states in America. We are one of the most overregulated states in the nation. Our local governments and local property taxpayers continue to foot the bill for one of the country’s heaviest burdens of unfunded state mandates. It’s no coincidence that New York led the nation last year in overall tax burden and population loss. Hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers are heading for the exits. This state is at a crossroads and we must enact an across-the-board agenda to cut taxes, address affordability, and rebuild stronger and safer communities.”
