| ISSUE: CELL PHONES FOR SOLDIERS; MILITARY; CALLING CARDS

In honor of Veterans Day and Military Family Appreciation Month, state Sen. Joseph Griffo, R-I-C-Rome, was joined by AT&T and the Central New York Veterans Outreach Center today to kick off this year's Cell Phones For Soldiers collection drive. For every donated phone, mobile device or tablet valued at $5, Cell Phones For Soldiers is able to provide 2.5 hours of free talk time to deployed troops via calling cards. All proceeds from the recycled devices will be used to buy long distance calling cards and other communication services for troops at home and abroad. As many as 200,000 troops are serving in the U.S. military around the world and by donating to Cell Phones For Soldiers, local residents and businesses can provide a valuable lifeline for America's bravest men and women to connect with loved ones back home. The collection drive starts on Veterans Day (Nov. 11) and runs through Saturday, Dec. 11. The public and businesses can drop off gently used and unwanted cell phones and/or tablets at collection bins in AT&T stores throughout the region and at several public locations throughout the senator's district. Drop-off locations include:

This is the sixth year that the drive has taken place lead by Senator Griffo and AT&T. Residents throughout Sen. Griffo's district have donated approximately 5,801 devices and have provided troops with more than 500,000 minutes (more than 8,300 hours) of free calls. "The holidays can be a difficult time for members of our military because they are often so far away from their families," Sen. Griffo said. "The simple sound of a loved one's voice can go a long way to lift their spirits. These brave men and women have stepped up to serve our nation, and I am proud to be teaming up with AT&T, the Central New York Veterans Outreach Center, Cell Phones for Soldiers and local businesses and organizations to help connect these troops to their families back home." "As a company that connects the world, AT&T believes that one of the best ways to support and thank the brave men and women that protect and serve our country, and the veterans before them, is by helping to keep them connected with their family, friends and loved ones," said Greeley Ford, Senior Network Engineer, AT&T. "We are extremely honored to collaborate with Senator Griffo and Cell Phones For Soldiers again this year to encourage this kindhearted and generous community to join us in supporting veterans, active military personnel and their families by donating their used mobile phones, tablets and other wireless devices." "We are so grateful to AT&T, Senator Griffo, and his constituents for their ongoing support of our mission to connect America's bravest," said Rob Bergquist, founder and president of Cell Phones For Soldiers. "As we approach our 19th year of helping military service members and veterans, we continue to serve those who served our country and look forward to expanding our mission. We now have the capacity to put donated mobile devices—collected through events like Senator Griffo's and AT&T's drive—in the hands of low-income and at-risk veterans. These devices will be lifelines to help veterans in need connect with critical resources.” “The holiday season can be a difficult and trying time for many families, especially for those who have a loved one serving in the military and away from home,” said Vincent Scalise, Central New York Veterans Outreach Center executive director. “I thank Sen. Griffo for again spearheading this collection drive and for his continued support of our armed forces and their families.” Cell Phones For Soldiers was founded in 2004 by teenagers Robbie and Brittany Bergquist at the ages of 12 and 13. The charity has since provided more than 300 million minutes of free talk time to servicemen and women stationed around the world through its calling card program, Minutes That Matter. Funds raised from the recycling of cellular phones are used to purchase prepaid international calling cards. On average, Cell Phones For Soldiers distributes 1,500 calling cards each week to bases around the world, care package programs, deployment ceremonies and VA hospitals. Since 2004, the charity has provided U.S. troops with more than 400 million “Minutes That Matter” and distributed more than 5 million prepaid international calling cards and have recycled more than 25 million mobile devices, reducing the impact on landfills. A donation of a mobile device to this community collection drive doesn’t just help connect active military and veterans with loved ones, it also helps protect the environment by properly and safely recycling them so not to cause electronic waste, which can be extremely harmful to the environment if it ends up in a landfill. Electronics such as mobile devices do not last a lifetime, yet they are made with products that are non-disposable, such as cadmium, mercury, and lead as well as lithium batteries and rare-earth minerals, and commonly cased in plastic—all things that can cause damage to water supplies and ecosystems. Cell Phones For Soldiers works with a recycling partner which dismantles the device securely, identifying which components may be resold for reuse - which helps cut the demand for mining in vulnerable locations, and providing funding for the organization to help service members communicate with home and support veterans in need.
