Kyle Kimball
President
New York City Economic Development Corporation
110 William St.
New York, NY 10038

Dear Mr. Kimball:

The extension of East River Ferry service through 2019 and the release of the EDC's preliminary Citywide Ferry Study attest to the effectiveness and popularity of ferry service as a public transportation option. This was underscored by the sustained and significant public push for restoration of service at the India Street Pier after an accident earlier this year.

The EDC has created a popular and important transportation option for many of our constituents and we thank you for your work to make the East River Ferry a success. Now they have an opportunity to expand transit access for New Yorkers by creating East River Ferry stops at Atlantic Ave./Pier 6 and Grand St. on the Lower East Side. These stops increase connectivity between the City's burgeoning Harbor Park and build a more resilient transit system for New York's growing waterfront residential and workforce populations.

The EDC's study outlines possible new routes and ranks site pairs. However, it underestimates the benefits of adding stops at Pier 6 and Grand Street. For example, the assumptions for the Pier 6/Pier 11 - Wall St. pairing have significantly longer travel times and higher fares than existing service requires. Currently, the ferry takes approximately 5 minutes between stops, and features a flat $4 fare. However, the study assumes 20 minute rides and $5 fares – increases which negatively impact ridership estimates.

As the study mentions, a Pier 6 stop means increased connectivity to Brooklyn Heights, Cobble Hill, and the Columbia Waterfront. A Pier 6 stop would directly serve Brooklyn Bridge Park, which continues to be extremely popular and has greatly surpassed annual visitor projections. The stop has the added benefit of connectivity to a nearby Citi Bike terminal, the B61, and the B63.

In addition, Pier 6 already has the infrastructure to support ferry service. It is also set to receive significant upgrades and improvements through federal funding secured by Senators Schumer and Gillibrand. The Pier 6 stop also has the support of Brooklyn Community Boards 2 and 6, numerous neighborhood civic organizations, and hundreds of residents who have signed petitions (included in the attached).

The EDC also studied a Manhattan Grand Street stop as part of a new route. The study showed a likelihood that this stop would be successful, and it was even included in final route recommendations. This was because it features a relatively high passenger capture rate and low-cost service implementation, with the added benefit of serving an economically diverse population.

Much like Pier 6, a Grand Street stop would also directly serve our growing Harbor Park. Park development at Pier 42 has begun. It has also recently received the support of the City administration, and planning for its first phase is quickly coming along. As the park at Pier 42 continues to grow, along with the coming resiliency and recreational upgrades being brought by the “Big U” Rebuild by Design project, there will be continued and sustained need for additional transit access.

A Grand Street stop would provide transportation access to a growing waterfront community as well as thousands of public housing residents that are historically transit-underserved. The stop would expand limited transit infrastructure in the area while providing access to local Citi Bike terminals, the M14, and the M21.

Communities served by limited transportation options are especially vulnerable when one of those options goes out of service. This was seen on the Brooklyn and Queens waterfronts recently when the G train went out of service for five weeks. Ferry service provides a significant transportation lifeline during such closures. It has also proven to be storm resilient, as witnessed by its rapid service resumption after Hurricane Sandy. This is an important consideration for both these areas that largely fall in storm flood zones.

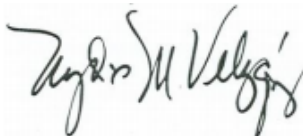

It is also important to note that nearly all other forms of public transportation in the city include a reduced fare for people with disabilities and seniors. We therefore ask that the EDC consider such a fare on the East River Ferry, and also include preference for such fare systems in future RFPs for ferry operators.

As the study acknowledges, there remains unmet need for additional transportation to serve growing commuting demands. Through the ferry service, the EDC has created a transportation lifeline for many of our constituents. We urge the EDC to act on its opportunity to help address significant transit needs by incorporating Grand Street and Pier 6 stops into East River Ferry service. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Daniel Squadron
