In 2010, the U.S. Census will define who we are as a nation. Required by the Constitution every ten years, the Census is a count of everyone living in the United States. The data collected affects funding for local communities, political representation and community planning.

Unfortunately, thousands of people in our community were not counted in the last Census. That means we were passed over for millions of dollars in state and federal resources. Our community lost out.

But, we can make sure it doesn't happen again. It is imperative that our communities be properly counted, which is why I am working directly with my colleagues and community leaders to set up "Complete Count Committees" to ensure all neighborhood residents are counted in the upcoming 2010 Census.
