

Pollution is a very terrible thing because animals could eat the plastic, or the plastic could choke them. The reason pollution is terrible is because it could cause animals to die. Pollution could result in violence and other things that can harm the Environment. That is why pollution is harmful and why we should stop it.

People are throwing trash into the ocean and sea creatures are consuming the trash. Many sea creatures are dying in the ocean because pollution is causing garbage to go inside the water which is harmful to the sea creatures. Since the ocean is getting polluted, making the water harmful and making millions of fish die almost making some of the fish and sea creatures have a few of their kind left. Another problem is that oil spills are making the sea creatures get poisoned and they end up dying.

To stop people from putting their trash in the ocean, people should work together and find the sea creatures that swallowed plastic and help take it out. An other solution to stop pollution is to conserve water, reduce waste, and respect habitat (ocean Service) by using less water, cutting down on what you throw away, and treat their habitat with care. Another solution is to manage oil spills, minimizing plastic waste, and to reduce pollutants.

The reason pollution is terrible is because sometimes oil spills into the water making the water poisonous and it could kill tons of people and fish if they swallowed the oil. Another reason pollution is terrible is because it is making fish and other animals die. This is why pollution is a terrible thing.
