A Message From Senator Sean Ryan

After serving in the NYS Assembly since 2011, I decided to continue serving the people of Western New York by running for NYS Senate in 2020. I thank the people of the 60th District for putting their trust in me to continue serving our community as a member of the NYS Senate.

When I took office earlier this year, our state faced many challenges as we continued to deal with the pandemic, and the fallout that impacted our economy and every facet of life. We knew the year ahead would be difficult, and I was ready to step up to put forward solutions and deliver real results for the people of the 60th District and Western New York.

The past year has seen the rollout of the vaccine, work to rebuild our economy, and triumph and tragedy. Throughout it all I have approached every day with optimism for the future. I hope this report will provide you with important information about the work I have been doing in the past year, and I wish our community well as we begin 2022.

With gratitude,

Sean M. Ryan
New York State Senator, 60th District

"Thank you to the people of the 60th District for putting your trust in me to continue serving our community as a member of the NYS Senate"

Joining The NYS Senate Majority

In January, Senator Ryan joined the new class of Senators as the 2021 legislative session began in Albany. The new Senate Majority includes representation from across Upstate New York.

Throughout the 2021 legislative session, Senator Ryan worked to pass bills and highlight important priorities such as expanding broadband access, improving funding for libraries, protecting kids from lead paint exposure, and providing new funding opportunities for small businesses.

Vaccine Rollout

One of Senator Ryan's top priorities was ensuring New York State did everything possible to work with the federal government to ensure a smooth rollout of the COVID-19 vaccine. Early on in January and February when vaccine distribution began, Senator Ryan urged the state to quickly fix the vaccination registration website, which had been slow and difficult for New Yorkers to use. Senator Ryan also urged the federal government to increase supply of the vaccine by using the Defense Production Act. As the vaccine rollout ramped up, Senator Ryan visited vaccine sites in WNY and encouraged people to get vaccinated to protect themselves and their communities.

Fighting for WNY

A new Bills stadium must work for Western New York

Talks of a new stadium for the Buffalo Bills have grabbed headlines in Western New York for quite some time now. We have all read the rumblings about possible locations, construction options, and, of course, the price tag. Barring a plan for major renovations to the fourth-oldest stadium in the NFL, it seems likely that the time has come to replace it.

I have always said that it is imperative the Bills remain in Western New York. We all understand that they are an important part of our community's fabric. In good times and in bad, the team is a constant and significant part of our region's identity. The Bills are a major source of civic pride; especially now that Brandon Beane and Sean McDermott have turned them into a Super Bowl contender.

But we cannot let that fact cloud our judgment and force us into a bad long-term deal for the people of Western New York.

Based on league-wide trends, the construction of a new stadium would undoubtedly be funded by a mix of private and public dollars. In the last decade, five publicly owned stadiums have been built, with public funding accounting for about one-third of the cost, on average. Like Highmark Stadium, a new Bills stadium would no doubt be owned by Erie County. Unlike Highmark Stadium, it needs to bring considerable tangible benefits to the public.

It is a well-documented fact that stadiums do not provide the economic benefits that are often advertised when the public is being sold on them. This is especially true of open-air stadiums in Northeastern cities. In a given year, Highmark Stadium hosts roughly 10 NFL games, a handful of local/regional events, and maybe a concert or two in the summer. One look at the neighborhood surrounding the 48-year-old stadium disproves the idea that a stadium spurs major economic development.

If we are to spend any public money on a new stadium, we need to make sure the community is getting guaranteed benefits. One way to do this is by negotiating a community benefits agreement (CBA). With a CBA, we can guarantee that any investment we make results in an economic ripple effect that will offset the cost to taxpayers. A CBA for a new stadium should include things like family-sustaining wage requirements and local hiring targets for both stadium staff and construction staff. It could also include specific investments to be made into public interest and nonprofit projects in the Western New York Community.

As stadium negotiations move forward, I will work with my colleagues in government and community stakeholders to help deliver a blueprint for a CBA that will ensure that the people of Erie County benefit from any investment we make. Western New Yorkers have made it clear how important it is for the Bills to remain in Buffalo. Now it is our duty to ensure that no one takes advantage of our community passion.

A New Bills Stadium

As the process to build a new stadium for the Buffalo Bills moved forward this year, Senator Ryan worked to make sure taxpayers were given a fair deal and ensure that the people of Erie County benefited from any new investment.

Refugee Resettlement

Senator Ryan worked to ensure the federal government resumed refugee admissions, which were slashed during the previous administration. He also secured $3 million for refugee resettlement agencies across New York, and made sure NYS was prepared for an influx of refugees from Afghanistan.

Scajaquada & Kensington Corridors

Throughout the year, Senator Ryan advocated for progress toward the transformation of the Scajaquada and Kensington Corridors in Buffalo. Senator Ryan knows we must fix the historic injustices and highways that have divided our communities for far too long.

Stopping Demolitions

Buffalo has long faced a demolition by neglect crisis – as we saw this year with the collapse of a building downtown. Senator Ryan worked with Preservation Buffalo Niagara, Councilmembers Rivera and Nowakowski, and stakeholders to put together a report on a path forward to ensure historic preservation.

Amigone Legislation

For decades, residents living near the Amigone crematory in Tonawanda have complained about the odor and the soot on their homes and cars.

Senator Ryan joined Assemblyman Bill Conrad to pass a law to allow Amigone to move away from the residential neighborhood and fix this problem for good.

Kenilworth Fire Company

Senator Ryan also joined Assemblyman Conrad to pass a law to allow the Kenilworth Volunteer Fire Company in Tonawanda to establish their first Benevolent Association.

THANK YOU, SENATOR RYAN

For your leadership in sponsoring legislation ensuring landlords' property insurance covers tenant lead poisoning costs (S.3079 / A.7488) – critical to ending childhood lead poisoning in New York!

Combating Lead Poisoning

Lead poisoning remains a major crisis for children and families. 90% of homes in Buffalo and other cities around NY have lead-based paint or service lines. The medical costs of lead exposure are high. Senator Ryan held a virtual legislative roundtable discussion to hear from a diverse panel of experts and stakeholders about his legislation S.3079, which prohibits the exclusion of coverage for losses or damages caused by exposure to lead-based paint. If signed into law, his legislation would give families much needed relief.

COVID-19 Economic Relief

Senator Ryan and the Senate Majority went to work quickly to address the impact of the pandemic and deliver much needed relief to New Yorkers. Thankfully the federal government delivered significant aid to New York and the nation with the American Rescue Plan. In April, the Senate Majority worked to ensure our state budget utilized federal aid by allocating $2.4 billion for the Emergency Rental Assistance Program, $500 million for Commercial Rent Relief, $1 billion in small business assistance, $600 million in homeowner assistance, $350 million in transportation infrastructure investments, $29.5 billion for New York schools, and $3.5 million in funding for upstate legal services for low-income families.

Expanding Broadband

A high-speed internet connection today is just as important as our traditional utilities like water and electricity. Senator Ryan successfully pushed to include in the 2021-2022 state budget a provision to map broadband access across New York and $1 million in funding to make the mapping a reality. Senator Ryan also joined Assemblymember Nily Rozic for a tour of the North Country to hold roundtables to discuss their legislation that would help to overcome our challenges to ensuring universal broadband access. The New York Broadband Resiliency, Public Safety, and Quality Act would make broadband a utility in New York to ensure oversight and accountability and truly expand access.

Red Jacket Peace Medal

Senator Ryan was honored to join officials from The Seneca Nation and the Buffalo History Museum for the return of the Red Jacket Peace Medal after working with both parties to help facilitate this important repatriation. The medal has been in the care of the Buffalo History Museum since 1895, and this year it was returned home to its rightful owners, the people of the Seneca Nation. The repatriation of Indigenous artifacts is an important process in building strong, meaningful, and peaceful relationships between Native American territories and their surrounding communities. The return of the Peace Medal – an explicit symbol of this relationship – is an especially significant act, and a momentous occasion here in Western New York.

Library Funding and Legislation

Senator Ryan is proud to serve as the Chair of the New York State Senate Libraries Committee. New York State is home to a total of 73 library systems: 23 public library systems, nine reference and research library systems, and 41 school library systems. There are 755 public libraries statewide. Six of the 40 largest libraries in the United States are in New York, more than any other state. In the 2021-22 State Budget, Senator Ryan worked to secure $34 million for Capital Projects, a $20 million increase from the previous year. Senator Ryan also passed several bills that will increase state funding to libraries, including S.6511 and S.5753, both of which were signed by the Governor. These bills streamline and modernize library aid formulas and boost funding for smaller libraries.
