"It is important that we understand the complexity of re-entry and approach the needs of formerly incarcerated women in a holistic way that helps them find fulfillment and acceptance in community and responsible citizenship. I am excited to be involved in this project so that we may all re-think re-entry."

Let's learn what organizations are doing to assist with re-entry programs in New York City, and then let's hear first-hand from formerly incarcerated individuals about needs that are NOT being met.
