

Reuse Reduce Recycle:
The Earth is Our Home

From the first day that the planet to be
It was working for us, for you and for me
From the tiniest worm to the tallest mountain
From a natural lake to a man-made fountain There is nothing, at all, that our earth doesn't give
It allows us a gift, the gift to live

Knowing all of this, it's safe to say
It is our job to treat earth the same way
When you want to just throw your trash on the floor
Remember that earth is worth a lot more

And your plastic is easy to just throw away but recycling helps us make a brighter day
And maybe the plastic bags are a bit more easy
But they just are not worth making our earth sick and queasy

So remember tomorrow, when you get out of bed
That the earth is our home, and be mindful instead
Thank you for the planet, the sky and the trees
I promise to be the type of person that this earth needs

By Elizabeth Raso Grade 5 P.S. 177