

Earth Day Every Day

We all know Earth Day is a important day, but instead of it being a day, it should be everyday in order to protect Earth everyday. I think people should celebrate Earth Day everyday in order to help, here are ways,limit the usage of harmful chemicals,only use what you need and stop littering.

One way to celebrate Earth Day is by limiting the amount of harmful chemical use. People should use less harmful chemicals so ocean animals can live in their habitat. People should have a limit to use harmful chemicals so animals can have a place to live and claim it as their habitat. People should also have a limit to use harmful chemicals so sea animals can live happily in their habitat.

Another way to celebrate Earth Day is by using only what you need. People should only use what they need so the forests aren't in danger. People also should only use what they need so animals would have a home, if people don't use what they need,then forest animals would have to flee the forest to find a new habitat. People should also use only what they need so forests and forest animals won't be in danger.

Lastly, people can stop littering all over their place. People should stop littering so Earth is a healthy and safe planet. People should also stop littering so, sea animals won't be endangered and won't start eating the trash. Finally people should stop littering so Earth and all of its organisms are safe.

In conclusion, Earth Day is an important day, but instead of it being a day, it should be everyday in order to protect Earth everyday and every time. Earth Day should be everyday to protect Earth's organisms and Earth itself.

