Ways We Can Make Everyday Earth-day!

Personally, I don't think Earth Day should be the only day when you appreciate and be friendly towards the earth. It's only once a year when most people think about recycling, dying animals because of human activity, and climate change. If every day is earth day, we can stop most problems. If we recycled everyday landfills wouldn't fill up faster, toxins wouldn't be able to leech into soil groundwater. You could help the earth in so many ways every day, why wait until one day of the year to do it? Instead of just throwing out plastic water bottles you could recycle them, instead of taking long showers take short ones, instead of letting the water flow as you brush your teeth turn it off. Adjusting little things into your schedule can make you a part of protecting our environment. You can also add reusing into your daily lifestyle. Reusing shopping bags, reusing paper, or reusing used items can help the earth. Conserving energy, changing your light bulbs and using automobiles that rely on gas can help our earth so much. You don't have to change your whole entire lifestyle just to help the earth. Little things can always help. If the majority can be able to do this daily or weekly you will see a change in the earth, whether it may take a couple years. Things will change. Many sea animals won't be affected by toxins and chemicals going into the ocean. When you conserve water, you can save money and divert less water from rivers, lakes etc. Driving your car less can eliminate air pollution. These are ways everyday can be earth day and the effects of changes everyone can make
