

Earth Day, Every Day

Let's make Earth Day every day. Here are some ways. You can protect the ecosystems, don't litter, and recycle.

If you save water and energy you protect the ecosystems, you can also use the back of paper to save paper which means you are saving trees that are important to ecosystems on earth.

One way to celebrate Earth day is to recycle cans to lower carbon dioxide production and save metal. You can recycle plastic things to stop endangerment of some animals. You can recycle paper to limit the amount of trees cut down. People should pick up trash cans, plastic, and used paper to recycle and save earth.

Another way to celebrate Earth day is to stop littering so you can recycle and not throw trash on the ground and put it in trash cans. Pick up garbage. And tell people about stopping littering. If you do help stop littering you help land and water pollution which is helping the ecosystem.

In conclusion, Earth day should be every day. Here are some ways, You can protect the ecosystems, don't litter, and recycle.
