

Thanksgiving Extra Credit Essay

I am thankful for many things. Some of them are things people might not think of and others are strange. For example, I am thankful that I exist in this world. However, sometimes even these things that I am thankful for, I may regret like existing when my parents yell at me really loudly and make the next few days very crappy.

There are many things that when I think of it, I am very thankful. Things like having enough money to buy food, have a home, buy a decent bed (My bed is decent) so I can sleep, have a blanket that can keep me warm, have clothes, etc. Some of the things I just mentioned are needed to survive like food and shelter and others are needed to not make you miserable. If I only had an underwear on, it would be very cold and everybody would laugh at me in school. If I never had a bed and only had a blanket, I would have to sleep on the floor with my back hurting every single morning.

The reason I am thankful that I exist in this world is because the world is kind of great(Not really). There are so much things that I like and things that I look forward to. Mostly, it would be video games and amusement parks or food that I love. I like playing video games and I always look forward everyday to play 30 minutes at the end of the day. Sometimes, when there isn't much to do, I would go out and play with my brother at the park and that is something that I also really enjoy. Though I would have to suffer and grieve during parts of my life, it would still really suck if I couldn't enjoy this stuff.

Other things that I am thankful for is for certain inventions. Basically without these inventions, I wouldn't really even want to live. They are mostly technology because I love playing video games and to play video games, you need an electronic and an electronic is technology. Most of the time I have free time, I play video games and if there was none, then my free time would be very boring and would be also pointless to me. Also, some of these things make life much easier in some ways like cars for example. It makes going around easier and also we don't have to use much effort to go to somewhere else that may be 20 miles away. My last thing that I am thankful for electronics is how handy it is when I need to communicate with others. Sometimes, when I need a little help or asking what we have to do for homework, I can just text my classmates and friends and ask them.

That is what I am thankful for and why I am. Mostly, they are things that I enjoy but also, others are for survival. The biggest thing that I feel most thankful for is existing in this world though it can make some parts of my life very miserable.
