Appreciation Mania

First of all, appreciation is really important. I hope everyone has at least 5 people they appreciate.

My mom and dad are the ones I appreciate the most. I have to appreciate them the most because my mom gave birth to me and my dad works the hardest and most in the family. It is important to appreciate them the most because if you do not have a mom, you would not be alive. If you did not have a dad, you would be a little poor and you will not be able to see your mom often so you will miss her. That is why your mom and dad are the first to appreciate. You also have to appreciate teachers, stores, nature, policeman, fireman, builders and of course animals. If you do not have a teacher, you will not be that smart. If there was not stores, you would have to find stuff and make your own stuff by hand. You also have to appreciate nature because then you will not have air, and natural resources so you can make stuff. You also have to appreciate policeman and fireman because they risk their lives to save people. You also have to appreciate builders. They also risk their lives by building tall buildings. For example, a skyscraper. You have to appreciate animals a lot because then, we would not have food.

In the end, I think it is really important to appreciate people or animals.

In conclusion, appreciation is a really important thing. People all should appreciate a lot of people or animals.
