I Am Thankful For....

This year I am thankful for many things. Some of these things include my family, my friends, my life, and the stuff I have.

I am thankful for my family because they buy me clothes and they treat me well. I am thankful for my life because I get to be around great people that like me for who I am. I am thankful for the stuff I have because I get to play and not be bored, staring at the wall all day long. I am thankful for all these things, but I am truly thankful for my mom. She goes above and beyond for me to be happy. She puts me in a great Catholic school, she puts me in sports, and she makes great food!

I am thankful to have the opportunity to get an education. The opportunity to attend school is something many people don't have. Some people got abandoned by their parents and they have to live on the streets for the rest of their lives. I am also thankful for the armed forces. Our lives would likely be very different if we didn't have protection from the armed forces. We would be slaves and we would get treated very wrong without the armed forces. People risked their lives so we can be free, just like how Vincent R. Capodanno did.

This is what I am thankful for this year. All of these things add up to something important- that you have to be grateful for what you have!
