

Tarah Deserre
Frankfort-Schuyler
Grade 6

During this time of year, many people give thanks. One reason you might be thankful is, we live in America and our four founding fathers worked hard for the rights that we have today.

Some of the rights that I have that I'm thankful for is, in American children can go to school and hopefully grow up and get good jobs and live a happy life and successful life. Another thing I am thankful for is my family/friends because some people are not as lucky as me to have friends and family that loves me very much and supports and motivates me everyday.

Being thankful means that you are grateful for what you have and not what you want. Those are some things I am thankful for. It is important to be thankful because it shows that you are grateful for what you have.