

Theresa Delong
ELA

November 6 2019

Being thankful means you show pride in someone or something. During this time of year people give thanks for many reasons. One reason people give thanks is to show appreciation. One thing I am thankful for is my family. I am thankful for my family because they support me and all of the decisions that I make. Another thing I am thankful for is my grandmother. I am thankful for my grandmother because she laughs at a lot of the things I say, she cooks the best food, and she knows me better than I know myself. I am also thankful for my school. I am thankful for my school because it prepares me for a job and it gives me the knowledge to be able to get into a job. In conclusion giving thanks or being thankful means to give and show pride or appreciation. It is important to be thankful for what you have because there are people out there that do have the things or people in their lives that we have. Remember that everything you have one day is not promised to be there the next. So enjoy everyone, everything and every moment you have with them. Especially family.